I just had to run all over the city to find somewhere open and spend $99 on a pair of boots for work because we are unable to access the back alley on Thompson street where he tossed the $138 ones I previously owned. I am not allowed on my job site without boots so I would've lost wages for the day if I didn't find these. I need to be reimbursed for these and I'm not taking no for an answer.

Shari, make it very clear to him the he is not to take one fucking step above the second floor because if he comes near my apartment one more time, I'm not tolerating it anymore. My safety has been threatened enough and I am tired of barricading my door every night and living in fear and anxiety. He broke into an occupied apartment with a knife the other day and is back slamming shit around. I have had it, the building better start thinking about how I'm going to be compensated for the absolute HELL I have been living.
